Next Year, Make New Resolutions Daily

I remind myself most every New Year of the words of Socrates: "The unexamined life is not worth living."

That statement rings true because over time things tend to change and get complicated. We begin our Christian life with utter delight and simplicity. As tradition, religion, and too many activities begin to pile on top of what was originally there, the simplicity can get lost.

During this holiday season, my thoughts returned to our pilgrimages to the Holy Land. These recollections fill me with the peace and joy we experienced as we worshipped in Bethlehem. Frequently people asked to walk where Jesus walked. They often asked their guide, "Did Jesus walk here?" The pious and honest guides from the Holy Patriarchate of Jerusalem answered, "Come here, let me show you something." They walked to the grotto beneath the Church of the Nativity and the guides asked, "Do you see that place in the corner? That is the scene described in the gospel of St. Luke concerning the birth of the Christ Child." The pilgrims begin to realize that over the passing of centuries and numerous wars, the sands of time have slowly covered multiple feet of the original site. Sometimes there's disappointment, but we always looked forward to those places where we can say for sure, "Jesus walked there."

For example, we know He walked on the Sea of Galilee. There's no way to build a church over that! There's no pile of rubbish, stack of debris, or rocks for people to kiss and put in their pockets. It's just water and the same surface that Jesus walked on. There you see the same shore where Jesus stood and told the Apostles, "Follow Me." It's an amazing feeling when the boat, somewhere in the middle of the lake, shuts down the engine. We bow our heads, listen to the word from God's Holy Book and allow ourselves to recapture that moment in history.

Almost without exception, the time on the sea remains each person's favorite part of the pilgrimage. Why? Because there we can return to the original simplicity of the faith.

It's the simple uncomplicated place where you renew something that has gotten buried over the years.

Each time I view the video and slides of our visits to the Seas of Galilee, I am over-

Following God's Path of Peace

This past Christmas provided a wonderful opportunity for our family to take a trip down memory lane. My brother, Fr. Gregory, reminded me of a boyhood story that has a great lesson for us today. When I was in junior high, Santa gave my one-year-old pet hamster, Zack, a special addition for his cage. These new tunnels were the latest technology. They were created to give hamsters more freedom. Habitrails were supposed to provide opportunities for our pet to exercise and roam. We thought that they would be great for Zack's health and well-being. Unfortunately, Zack's new found freedom ended just a few months later. One day before school, I followed my typical morning routine. I woke up and rushed to the cage. After greeting Zack, I realized that the pile of wood shavings where he slept was not moving. I quickly glanced at the top of the cage to see teeth marks. Those marks led to a gaping hole in the tunnel. Zack was gone! He escaped! Our family quickly formulated a plan. I strategically laid a trail of delicious green food pellets. The trails were all over the house. They led to the open door of Zack's cage. These pellets were lovingly placed to help Zack find his way back home. A few months passed. Tragically, I found a half-eaten pellet trail that suddenly stopped next to a roll of linoleum flooring. Inside was Zack. Unfortunately, it was too late. Zack must have gone in one end of the roll and started running in circles. He then became disoriented and never managed to find his way out.

This could be a picture of us. As we begin a new year, we may feel disoriented, unhappy or unfulfilled like Zack did. We may feel like something is wrong but we cannot figure out what it is. Some of us have abandoned God. The joy that comes from dwelling with the Lord is gone. This causes us to feel uneasy, confused, frustrated and even alienated. We are estranged and we cannot explain why. We have everything just like Zack, but want more. Today you may be seeking happiness and peace but nothing seems to bring it. We cover this uneasiness with frantic activity and endless running around. Our families are buried in activities and events. Uneasiness is drowned out with television programs. When all of the movement stops, especially after the holidays, we realize our boredom and fear.

Gavel to Gavel

BY GEORGE MANNOS, JR. Parish Council Secretary

Parish Council meeting of Thursday, November 16

Financial Report

✦ Peter Poteres reported that for the month of October, the church had a negative cash flow of $14,122.60. For the ten months ending October 31, the church had a negative cash flow of $120,854.97. Don Alexander moved to approve the financial statement dated October 31. The motion passed unanimously.

Stewardship

✦ Ted Gregory reported that for October the church had received 832 pledges (down 12 from 2005) totaling $636,731.86 (up $22,692.01 from 2005) for an average pledge of $765.31 (up $37.77 from 2005). Amount paid YTD was $570,799.86 (up $13,154.01 from 2005). An additional $50 was collected for 2005, leaving a balance of $9,750. Ted reminded everyone that Sunday the 26 is Stewardship Sunday. The goal for 2007 is $680,000.

Correspondence

✦ George T. Mannos, Jr. reported that a full page ad was purchased for the Metropolis of Chicago Federation of Greek Orthodox Church Choirs 49th Annual Choir Conference. Nick Paloumpis sent a note expressing his gratitude for the church's support. Nick was honored to receive the Patriarch Athenagoras Award for his years of service. A thank you note was also received from Elaine Paloumpis.

Suggestion Box Suggestions

- ✦ The perimeter of the multi-purpose room needs to be cleaned.
- ✦ The women's bathrooms need to be cleaned more thoroughly, and on a regular basis.
- ✦ The small trees on the west side of the storage room need to be straightened, and anchored.
- ✦ It would be helpful if food left in the refrigerator would be labeled, with the owner's name and the date.

Meditation

✦ Father Bill noted that November 26 is Stewardship Sunday, and reminded us of our obligation to be good stewards in every possible way. Our church's goal has always been that stewardship would eventually fund the church 100%. The success of our stewardship program is well recognized in the community. Stewardship Sunday coincides with the Thanksgiving Holiday weekend, and it gives us an opportunity to reflect on the spirit of thanks and giving.

✦ Father also mentioned that he had received an e-mail from a woman who visited our church for the first time, and she noted how well she was received and treated.

Building & Grounds

- ✦ The tuck pointing and seal coating has been completed.
- ✦ A $2500 anonymous donation was received to replace the trees that were recently removed.
- ✦ Hinsdale Nursery will replace the trees in Spring 2007.
- ✦ Fric and Frac will start the renovation of the men's room, to accommodate the physically challenged.

President's Report

Sandy Fiascone addressed the following:

- ✦ The nominations for the Parish Council elections will be received on Sunday, November 26 for the December 17 election. Chris Zurales made note that the ballots from the 2004-2006 elections were arranged alphabetically in order to give the candidates an equal opportunity. There was a general consensus that this plan should be implemented for the upcoming election.
- ✦ Sandy suggested the following people be appointed judges for the election: Ioanna Burtzos, Greg Vandarakis and Al Coulolias.
- ✦ The HA staff's Christmas gifts were discussed.

Old Business

✦ Sandy suggested that before the balance is paid to Mr. Tonelli for the mosaic, that we have a meeting with him and present a punch list to address the following items: the epoxy overspray; the grout defects; the overall cleaning of the mosaic; and the material overcharges.

New Business

✦ The Very Reverend Demetri C. Kantzavelos' ordination to bishop will take place at Assumption Church on December 9. Jim Fotopoulos moved that a gift be presented to the Reverend D. C. Kantzavelos Fund in the amount of $2000. The motion passed unanimously.

Fr. Bill from P. 1*In the new year, return to the old truths come with the same emotion of love, peace and hope. To view the church of the Holy Apostles at a distance on the shores of Galilee brings tears to my eyes. It is precisely at this time I have asked the pilgrims how they feel at this moment. Their reply is quick and succinct. "Words will never describe my feelings of hope and peace." The peaceful surroundings conjure up unforgettable moments of love and peace.

In a world that has lost its way and in a culture that has drifted away from the truth, we need to return to the truth. Some have drifted from the truth of Orthodoxy, have become disenchanted with the path of today's church and have not been able to sort out the facts. Many people are easily swayed by false doctrines and false teachers. The Apostle Paul wrote to his beloved Timothy, "For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but according to their own desires, because they have itching ears, they will heap up for themselves teachers; and they will turn their ears away from the truth, and be turned aside to fables." (2 Timothy 4:3-4)

Each New Year's Day, we make resolutions. We decide to begin again and to live differently. The weakness of the New Year resolutions is that they reach too far. They violate the principle that life, for the most part, has to be lived a day at a time. It is better to make these resolutions every morning. It is easier to keep them for a day. If we really mean business, every morning is a new beginning, not merely on New Year's Day.

Someone has written, "Every morning is a fresh beginning, every morning is the world made new. You who are weary of sorrow and sinning, here is a beautiful hope for you." How can the New Year be anything but blessed for one who believes in the gospel of beginning again?

I often smile when I read the Gospel of Mark. He loved the word "immediately." It appears again and again. Mark reminds us that Jesus' life was packed with people and pressure like you and I have never known. He also records that "in the early morning, while it was still dark, Jesus got up, left the house, and went away to a secluded place, and was praying there" (Mark 1:35).

With the passing of another year, let us examine our lives and make changes for the New Year. Shall we find time for God in this New Year? Will we find time for the things that abide forever, for the soul, for prayer, for faith and love? Or will we waste another year with the excuse that we have no time for such things? Why is it that some people find time for God and others do not? Is it that some people have more time than others? The key is not the amount of time, but in how we use it.

Returning to the Nativity site, St. Joseph rejected the devil's distractions. He remembered the comforting words of the angel of the Lord that this child would save His people from their sins (Mt. 1:21). Placing our trust in God, laying aside the worldly cares and doubts, and holding fast to God's promise and gift of salvation, the incarnate Word of God, let us welcome the New Year with hope, confidence and joy.

May 2007 prove to be your best year yet, as through your resolutions you align your heart with God's.

Parish Council elections results not in

Avoid the linoleum rolls of life

Why do some of us feel this way? The Church tells us that we are not really at home. We are alienated from God who is our true home and country.

As we begin this New Year, how can we get back to our spiritual home? St. Athanasios, whose feast day is celebrated on January 18, proclaimed good news for those who are lost. He said, "God became human so that humans could become like God."

If we continually strive to be God-like, we will feel at home. Regardless of our external situation, internally we will be filled with God's peace.

The Book of Philippians provides a path to this peace. It challenges us to "be anxious for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be known to God." If we seek God through prayer, "the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard our hearts and minds."

Our daily lives provide either a trail leading to God or away from Him. Most of the paths in front of us are like that roll of linoleum that Zack found. They are good and useful. The danger is that they become our focus. We can get to the point that we become confused and lose our way. Our beloved little hamster was walking towards the narrow gate of life. He detoured and wandered into the linoleum roll.

Do you have any linoleum rolls in your life? As we celebrate St. Athanasios, we can remember to strive to become more God-like by utilizing the tools of prayer and participation in the sacramental life of the Church.

In remembering that God became human so that we could become like God, we know that we all have the potential to grow closer to God. By following St. Athanasios' example, we can learn to follow the path that God has set for us. That path leads to a fulfilling and peace-filled life. We may encounter some linoleum rolls, but they will not keep us from God!

Adventure Theater presents a delightful Christmas doubleheader

On Dec. 4, after a delicious lunch, a very enthusiastic audience enjoyed the latest dramas by Adventure Theater.

The mini-plays, The Touch of an Angel, and Vic's First Merry Christmas were funny, touching and included a bit of romance.

Mr. D produced the plays with the help of his very trustworthy, resourceful, and conscientious directors Alex Adams, (a high school freshman), Jordan Anderson, (a high school freshman), Will Dimas (a seventh grader), Samantha Lee Lozano, (a high school sophomore), and Connie Savas (an eighth grader).

These young people were responsible for directing the plays, lighting and sound production, as well as keeping the off stage kids occupied. Thank you to the very capable sound engineers Ryan Sarelas, a college grad, and Adventure Theater alum, and Nick Tsicouris, a high school senior.

The entire cast did a great job. We look forward to their future performances. The tireless support of the Adventure theater parents is commendable. Mike Cotsilis' faithful behind-the-scenes cooking magic added to the enjoyment of the day.

The HARC CORNERWho Is Jesus?

By Dee Margaret Pennock

This little book is for all interested readers, but particularly for teenagers and those who are helping them become established in the Christian way of life. Its purpose is to protect young people from the whirlwind of self-destructive, anti-Christian ideas they will inevitably encounter in today's society. This booklet may serve as a little coat of armor against whatever spiritual warfare may lie ahead.

Who Are the Christians in the Middle East?By Betty Jane Bailey
& J. Martin Bailey

In this highly readable and informative book, American Protestant journalists Betty and J. Martin Bailey tell of their experiences in the Middle East and of the many Christians that still call this area their home.

Many of us are unaware that the church was born in the East and many Christian communities can trace their roots to the disciples of Jesus and the day of Pentecost. The text tells of the diversity of these communities, their beliefs, traditions and current strained situation and the prospect for their survival. In their travels, the authors have worshipped using many different liturgies and in several different languages. The presence of the saints in icons, symbols, liturgies and hymns enhanced their sense of the universal church and its value to the communities of this area.

Twice A Stranger: The Mass Expulsions That Forged Modern Greece and Turkey

By Bruce Clark

This new book is historical writing at its finest. It is written for the general reader, not just for scholars, and has made accessible the history of a major event that had an enormous impact on modern Greece and the Greek people.

At the conclusion of the First World War, which resulted in the final dissolution of the Ottoman Empire, Greece and Turkey entered into a war from 1919–1922, which caused one of largest population exchanges in history. In many ways, these events of the early 1920s were instrumental in the formation of the modern nation-states of Greece and Turkey.

Recently we have all read about ethnic cleansing in various areas of the world, from the Balkans, the Middle East, to South Asia and Africa. What, if anything, can we learn from one of modern time's largest ethnic engineering attempts, which were carried out with the support of the victorious allies in the First World War?

Bruce Clark does a fascinating job of using new archival research materials, as well as first-hand oral testimonies, from survivors of the forced population exchange between Greece and Turkey, of the Greek Orthodox living in Anatolia, in Turkish Asia Minor, and also Turkish Muslims living in Greece.

The book recounts in painful detail the horrors that ensued during and after the Greek-Turkish War and the terrible price that was paid by the Orthodox Christians who had been living in Anatolia for generations. It is the historical story of the horrible impact of the war and the subsequent Lausanne Agreement of 1923, which regularized the forced exchange of the Greek Orthodox and mostly Turkish speaking inhabitants of Anatolia, and the Muslim and mostly Greek speaking inhabitants of Greece.

As finally agreed upon by the Greek and Turkish negotiators at Lausanne, along with the European powers and Balkan governments, the ethnic cleansing and forced expulsions of Greek Orthodox that was already underway in Asia Minor was formalized. Ultimately, over 1.2 million Greeks were expelled from Turkey under horrible and brutal conditions and, in turn, approximately 400,000 Muslims were expelled from Greece. For the Greeks this was a terrible catastrophe, for not only were Greeks dying by the tens of thousands, but Greece was hardly in the position to easily absorb the influx of well over one million refugees, most of whom were desperately ill, starving and living in deplorable conditions.

Bruce Clark has done a masterful job of providing the reader with not only a detailed account of the diplomatic negotiations, which resulted in the involuntary population exchange, but he also includes many poignant and personal histories of the ordinary people caught up in this attempt at ethnic and religious social engineering.

You come away after reading this brilliantly written and thoroughly researched book with a better understanding of what was indeed "The Great Catastrophe". I highly recommend this moving, emotional and important book that is of value especially today, as the world continues to deal with ethnic and religious conflicts around the world. From it we better understand past atrocities and hopefully will learn important lessons as we confront similar problems in the 21st century.

For those interested in reading more about this period of Greek-Turkish history and its impact on the ordinary people involved, I recommend the instructive and compelling historical novel, Birds Without Wings, by Louis de Bernieres.
